By the President of the United States of America. A PROCLAMATION.

I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy thereof, do hereby proclaim and declare that hereafter, as heretofore, the war will be prosecuted for the object of practically restoring the constitutional relation between the United States and each of the States, and the people thereof, in which States that relation is or may be suspended or dis-

That it is my purpose, upon the next meeting of Congress, to again recommend the adoption of a practical measure tendering pecuniary aid to the free acceptance or rejection of all Slave States, so called, the people whereof may not then be in rebellion against the United States, and which States may then have voluntarily adopted, or thereafter may voluntarily adopt, immediate or gradual abolishment of slavery within their respective limits; and that the effort to colonize persons of African descent with their consent, upon this continent or elsewhere, with the previously-obtained consent of the Governments existing there, will be continued.

That on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, all persons held as slaves within any State, or designated part of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforward free; and the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval anthority thereof, will recognise and maintain the freedom of such persons, and will do no act or acts to repress such persons, or any of them, in any efforts they make make for their actual freedom. That the Executive will, on the first day of January aforesaid, by proclamation, designate the States and parts of States, if any, in which the people thereof respectively shall then be in rebellion against the United States; and the fact that any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States, by members chosen thereto at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such State shall have participated, shall, in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State, and the people thereof, are not then in rebellion against the United States.

That attention is hereby called to an act of Congress entitled "An act to make an additional Article of War," approved March 13, 1862, and which act is in the words and figures follow-

" Be it enticted by the Senate and House of Ren. resentatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That hereafter the following shall be promulgated as an additional arti-cle of war for the government of the Army of the United States, and shall be obeyed and observed as such

"ARTICLE.—All officers or persons in the military or naval service of the United States are prohibited from employing any of the forces under their respective commands for the purpose of returning fugitives from service or labor who may have escaped from any persons to whom such service or labor is clanned to be due; and any officer who shall be found guilty by a court-martial of violating this article shall be dismissed from the service.

"Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage. Also, to the ninth and tenth sections of an act entitled "An act to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and rebellion, to seize and confiscate property of rebels, and for otherpurposes," approved July 17, 1862, and which sections are in the words and figures follow

"Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That all slaves of persons who shall hereafter be engaged in rebellion against the Government of the United States, or who shall in any way give aid or comfort thereto, escaping from such persons and taking refuge within the lines of the army; and all slaves captured from such persons, or deserted by them and coming un-der the control of the Government of the United States; and all slaves of such persons found on [or] being within any place occupied by rebel forces and afterwards occupied by rebel forces and afterwards occupied by the forces of the United States, shall be deemed captives of war, and shall be forever free of their servitude, and not again held as slaves.

"Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That no slave escaping into any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, from any other State, shall be delivered up. or in any way impeded. shall be delivered up, or in any way impeded or hindered of his liberty, except for crime, or some offence against the laws, unless the per-son claiming said fugitive shall first make oath son claiming said fugitive shall first make outh that the person to whom the labor or service of such fugitive is alleged to be due is his lawful owner, and has not borne arms against the United States in the present rebellion, nor in any way given aid and comfort thereto; and no person engaged in the military or naval service of the United States shall, under any pretence whatever, assume to decide on the validity of the claim of any person to the service or labor of any other person, or surrender up any such person to the claimant, on pain of being dis-missed from the service."

And I do hereby enjoin upon and order all persons engaged in the military and naval service of the United States to observe, obey, and enforce, within their respective spheres of service, the act and sections above recited.

And the Executive will in due time recommend that all citizens of the United States who shall have remained loyal thereto throughout the rebellion shall (upon the restoration of the constitutional relation between the United States and their respective States and people, if that relation shall have been suspended or disturbed) be compensated for all losses by acts of the United States, including the loss of slaves. In witness whereof I he ve hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this twenty-second day of September, in the year of IL & Jour Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN. By the President:

WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State A COMMON TERM BRAUTIFULLY DEFINED. An soldier, in appealing lately to his son to go and fight for the Government and the Union, said: "Perhaps you have never thought what your country means. It is all that surrounds you—all that has brought you up and fed you—all that you have loved. This country that you see—these houses, these trees, those girls who go along there laughing—this is your country. The laws which protect you, the bread which pays for your work, the words you interchance The laws which protect you, the bread which pays for your work, the words you interchange with others, the joy and grief which come to you from the men and things among which you live—this is your country! The little room where you used to see your mother, the remembrances she has left you, the earth where she rests—this is your country! You see it, you breathe it everywhere. Think for yourself of your right and duties, your affections and your wants, your past and present blessings; write them all under a single name—and that name will be your country. We owe all that we are, will be your country. We owe all that we are, and he who enjoys the advantage of having a free country, and does not accept the burdens of it forfeits his honor, and is a bad citizen. Do for your country what you would do for your father and mother. Your country is in danger."

It was not a pleasant sight to behold the New York 12th Regiment march up Broadway this afternoon, as paroled prisoners of war. The street was lined with spectatore, it is true, but there was scarcely a cheer to lighten the steps of the troops as they filed along. The crowd seemed to think—if it did not say—"we crowd seemed to think—if it did not say—we should like to salute you as the heroes of Harper's Ferry, but we conscientiously cannot." The ladies thronged the windows at all the hotels, but not one of them condescended to wave her handkerchief to show that their services in the cause of their country were appreciated.—N. Y. Ger. Early on Saturday morning one hundred infairly on Saturday morning one nundred in-fairly and fifty sharpshooters crossed the river on a reconnoissance, finding a rebel battery of four guns placed seventy yards from the river to oppose our crossing. They were abandoned by the rebels on the approach of our troops, who brought them across the river without opposition, excepting one, that could not be moved, and was thrown down the bank. The reconnoissance was conducted a mile from the river, where a large body of rebel cavalry were formed in a line of battle.

At 9 o'clock on Saturday morning a recon-noissance in force was made by nine regiments, who crossed at the same place, supported by five batteries stationed on the Maryland shore, opposite them. Information was received that the rebels were advancing to give fattle, in strong force. They soon appeared, and in spite of a deadly fire from our batteries, engaged our troops, who, after a stubborn resistance, were forced to fall back before superior numbers, and recross the Potomac. The New York Herald has the following: Harper's Ferry was finally evacuated by the Rebels on Friday afternoon. At noon on Friday they had all left there except a few pickets. A small squad also remained on the Maryland Heights, to keep up appearances, and a small force at Sandy Hook, to prevent the passage of Captain Evans's company of the 6th regular cavalry. On Friday afternoon this company left by way of Burkittsville to join in pursuit of the retreating Posts morning a number of divisions began to arrive. Early in the day an engine and two cars were run up from the Point of Rocks.

Gen. Stoneman's command passed over to the Ferry, and found the place deserted just before their entrance into the town.

The body was brought down from Boston in a richly especiation of the series with four horses, by way of Hingham and South Shore. Several coaches conveyed his Boston friends from the Kingston depot, while a large assemblage gathered from the neighboring towns. Rev. Mr. Alden, the village pastor, conducted the services; the body resting on his father's writing table in the library, according to his dying request. A large procession followed his body to the tomb where the coffin was deposited with the family whom a nation mourns.

By request of Peter Harvey, Eeq., and others, the oaken box containing the great statesman's coffin was opened, and the metallic cover of the glass removed. "It is evident that they have given up all hope of obtaining supplies in Cincinnati, or of carrying the war into the North. It is represented to us, reliably we believe, that the success of the rebels in recruiting in Kentucky has fallen short of their expectations. They have certainly obtained by process of fattery and falsehood, tempered with coercion, some thousands of recruits, but Kentucky still has many more in the Union than in a rebel army. Kirby Smith is said to have denounced John Morgan as a falsifier for representing that if Kentucky were occupied by a rebel army the men would almost unanimously rush to fill up its ranks."

GOLD IN MAINE.—Prof. Geo. L. Goodale, of the scientific survey of Maine, writes to Dr. DeLaski that he had the "pleasure of discover-ing (on the 25th ult., in the town of Princeton, about fifteen or twenty miles west of Calais) in a ledge of great extent, not only a good chance to find gold, but gold of much purity. The gold is like that of Tangiers locally, and promises well. The land, formerly worth 35 cents per acre, is to-day worth $10 per foot."

Sharpeburg, the scene of the late tremendous battles, is a small post village in Washington county, Md., sixteen miles south from Hagerstown, about twelve miles west of Middletown, from which it is separated by the South Mountain, about the same distance north from Harper's Ferry, and some three miles from the ferry on the Potomac at Shepherdstown, Va. Great Excitement at Louisville General Bragg's Rebel Army Marching on the City-The Women and Children Ordered Away.

Louisville, Sept. 22—Brarg's rebel forces have escaped from Gen. Buell, and are several hours ahead, approaching rapidly to Louisisville. Maj. Gen. Nelson is arranging to desiend the city to the last. Accordingly he has issued the following order:

"The women and children of this city will prepare to leave the city without delay. Jefferson Ferry is to be used exetualized for millitary purposes. Persons on foot may proceed as usual."

The city is in a blaze of excitement, and mos of the stores are closed, citizens apprehending an attack within 48 hours.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 20.—The bridge over the Hatchie river, a few miles north of this city, was burned by guerillas on Thursday night. The bridge was not guarded, as it was considered of no importance. Gen. Villipigne's robel forces are reported to be stationed twelve miles from Memphis, in the vicinity of Hernande. The army of General Breckingidge is at Holly Springs. An expedition with transports, convoyed by a gunboat, left Helena, Ark., on Wednesday. A part of the troops, landing at Laconia, are twenty miles above Napoleon. The precise object of the movement is not known.

Affairs in Nebraska Territory. OMAHA, N.T., Sept. 20.—The messengers dispatched by Acting Governor Paddock to the northern settlements of this Territory, some 200 miles from here, report that the panic created by the Indian massacres in Minnesota has entirely subsided, and that the settlers have returned to their homes. There are now no hostile Indians within the limits of this Territory, and there is not the removal and the settlers have returned to their homes. of any trouble to settlers in any secti Indian depredations.

Wickliffe, of Louisiana, arrived in New Orleans under a flag of trace from Gen. Taylor, commanding a force of guerillas on the right bank of the Mississippi, and threatened Gen. Butler with retaliation should the "misconduct" of the Pederal troops outside the city limits be persisted in. Gen. Butler stated in reply that should Gen. Taylor carry out his threats of retaliation, the example would be followed by himself. Business was very dull in the city. The supplies of sugar and molasses on band were almost exhausted. Monetary affairs were also quiet. Good health continued to prevail, and no cases of yellow fever have been noted.
